The Huntington Beach Historical Society is a non-profit organization whose purpose is to bring together people interested in the history of our city.

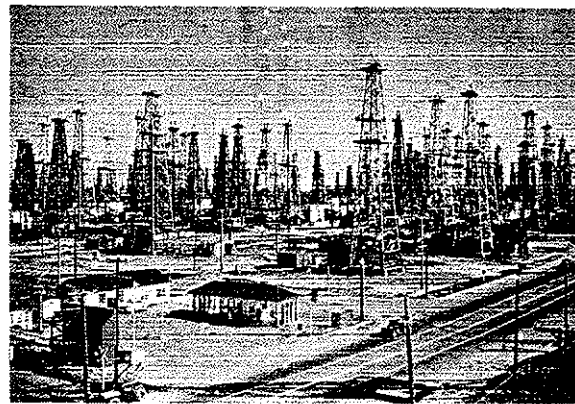

General meetings are at 7:30 p.m. on the second Tuesday evening of the month at the Newland House Barn, located at the corner of Beach Boulevard and Adams Avenue.

Special events are held at various times throughout the year which include membership teas, luncheons and exciting activities held at the Newland House.

Membership is open to all who are committed to the preservation of historical structures, artifacts and local memorabilia or folklore. You don't have to be a resident of Huntington Beach to join.

You can become involved through:

- society membership
- donations to society holdings
 - photos of the past city
 - clothing worn during the "early days"
 - other city related artifacts
- bequests to the society's projects
 - gifts to the Newland House Museum
 - equipment for the archives
- volunteer hours
 - museum docent program
 - oral history (record others or oneself)
 - historic preservation projects
 - special events planning
 - school outreach opportunities

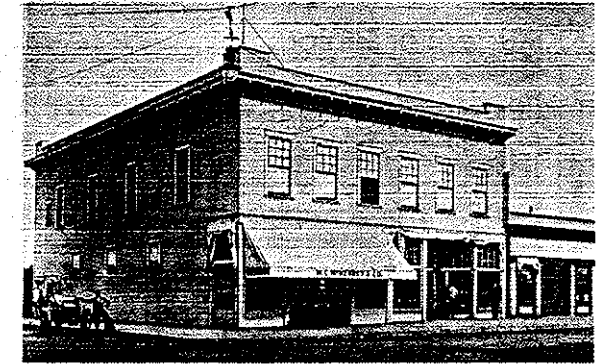

The Huntington Beach Historical Society was founded to restore and manage the Newland House, home of William Newland and his family, who were among the first settlers in this area.

Since its establishment in 1974, the HBHS has evolved into a society of members whose interests have gone beyond the original farm house. The society boasts possession of an extensive collection of photos and period clothing. Future goals include the development of a preservation/restoration library and ultimately a local history museum.

Currently, HBHS members reach out into the community by sharing slide presentations of Huntington Beach's history with students and adults in public forums. Others help record oral memories of older residents. Still other society members serve the community as City Council advisors on historic issues. A major undertaking since the society's inception has been the volunteer staffing of the Newland House Museum and Country Store Gift Shop.

The Newland House Museum is open on Wednesday, Thursday, Saturday and Sunday afternoons for public viewing. School group tours are arranged during off hours. Carefully restored to depict a 1920s home, the Newland House evokes a memory of the farmland that once embraced Huntington Beach.

The Newland House Country Store is located inside of the facility and shares the same hours as the museum. It features bits of historical lore, country nostalgia and unusual gift items. House docents enjoy a ten percent discount on their purchases.
